To my Brothers and Sisters,

Mike Ottel and I would like to take the time to thank the membership for sending us to the William W. Winpisinger Education and Technology Center in March.

Once again the facility, staff and teachers are outstanding. There is so much involved behind the scenes that needs to happen to bring this opportunity possible.

We are blessed to have this facility available to us. We should all be proud of the Winpisinger Center. We are the ONLY union in North America with a facility dedicated full time to the education of our members. If you have the desire to make a difference in our union I strongly encourage to check out the classes we have to offer.

In the past 4 years Mike and I have gained a wealth of information and knowledge. Understanding what a union is, the history of the union, how to be a steward, organizing, human rights, commination and how politics plays a role in our union, and so much more.

This last class we took was called Train the Trainer. It gave us the skills needed to effectively teach and communicate to our members all the information the Winpisinger gave us. There is so much involved in teaching than you think. Understanding instructional media, is where we learned there are seven different styles of adult learning. Being able to evaluate your class with in the first two minutes on how much they know about your objective. The different style of teaching that can be used to make sure your members are understanding. How to write a lesson plan, how to structure your class, and what teaching methods are going to be most effective in everyone learning. Two way commination is key for both the student and teacher.

We also had to give three presentations during our 5 day stay. A two minute speech (on Monday), ten minute speech (on Tuesday) and a thirty minute speech (on Thursday). Believe it or not you would think the 30 minute speech would have been the hardest. No, it was the two minute speech. We were giving a word on day 1 that we had to talk about for 2 minutes. You wouldn't think that was too bad we here to tell you, only one class member was able to make it 2 minutes. Being put on the spot not knowing what you're going to be talking about and not being prepared or organized for your talk, it's almost impossible to get an effective message across. We were told at the end of class on Monday that will be the hardest thing we had to do all week? We were all in doubt. If we couldn't do 2 minutes how were we going to do 30? After all the lessons we were

132nd Anniversary Commemoration of Historic Workers' Killings Set May 6, 2018

More than 200 are expected to attend the 132nd Anniversary Commemoration of the Bay View Tragedy at 3 p.m., Sunday, May 6, to recall the killing of seven persons participating in a march for the eight-hour-day on May 5, 1886. The event which was to become the bloodiest labor event in Wisconsin history came as some 1500 workers marched toward the huge Bay View Rolling Mills on the shores of Lake Michigan and were fired upon by the State Militia.

The event, named the Bay View Tragedy, will be commemorated at the State Historical Marker site on the corner of S. Superior St. and E. Russell Ave. in Milwaukee's Bay View neighborhood.

A re-enactment of the event, complete with larger than life-sized puppets, will be staged by actors under a production of Barbara Leigh, former director of the Milwaukee Public Theatre. There will be musical performances by prominent Milwaukee folksinger Craig Siemsen and additional music by drummer Jaymes Finlayson.

Pam Fendt, president of the Milwaukee Area Labor Council, will give remarks, linking the 1886 event to today's issues.

This will mark the 32nd consecutive year in which the anniversary commemoration has been held, all under the sponsorship of the Wisconsin Labor History Society, with additional support from the Bay View Historical Society and the Wisconsin State AFL-CIO. In recent years, crowds of up to 300 persons have attended.

The event is free and open to the public. Further information may be obtained by contacting Ken Germanson, event coordinator, at keng@wisconsinlaborhistory.org. For background information, go to <http://www.wisconsinlaborhistory.org/resources/bay-view/> calls attention to the persistent moral and economic injustice working women face. For a woman to earn as much as a man, she has to work a full year, plus more than a hundred extra days, all the way to April 10.

Equal Pay Day

That's because women get paid 80 cents for every dollar earned by white men. The problem is worse for women of color, with black women getting paid only 63 cents and Latina women 54 cents.

Message of the Day—Time to Close the Pay Gap

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy signed the Equal Pay Act, making it illegal to pay women less than men for doing the same work.

At the time, women were paid only 59 cents for every dollar men made. The law helped, and by 2000 that number was up to 74 cents. Since then, progress has slowed almost to a standstill.

Women are the backbone of America's economy, making up more than half the workforce and providing enormous contributions to family income. Women also do most of the work in the household, work that is unpaid.

As a society, we must strive to do better. We can value women's work in our economy, communities and families.

We need more data about the pay gap, and we need politicians who have the courage to close that gap.

Kitchen Table Economics

169 years: That's how long it will take for the worldwide gender-based pay gap to close if we do nothing else.

Greetings Fellow Veterans,

I'm Just Saying...

In December of last year the republican controlled US congress decided that what our country needs more than single payer health care for all or a federally sponsored infrastructure renovation plan, that would create good paying jobs and training opportunities, was a bill that removes 1.5+ trillion dollars from our treasury to provide tax cuts heavily favoring our country's wealthiest corporations.

Now, the promoters of this blatant transfer of wealth will argue that there will eventually be real benefits to the middle class coming from this "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act". They will tell you that it is too early to tell if the "trickle down" theory will work this time. In the meantime we are told to look at the one or two hundred dollars of temporary tax reduction per year we are receiving and be joyful.

I'm not going to argue the different economic theories involved in this action. I'll leave that to those with deeper understanding of those issues. However, I do want to call our attention to comments from the top level of our govern-

10 Students Graduate from LCLAA Milwaukee Industrial Skills Class

On April 21 members of the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement – Milwaukee Chapter together with friends and family gathered for a ceremony honoring 10 dedicated students that graduated from the Winter/Spring session of the LCLAA Milwaukee Spanish language Industrial Skills class.

The course, is the third in a series developed and facilitated by IAM Lodge 66 retiree Roger Hinkle. The training, conducted in Spanish, is geared to provide the basic measurement and math skills for workers to begin moving toward higher skilled manufacturing positions in their shops. "I used to see people using micrometers and I never knew what they were doing," one graduate told the crowd. "I now understand what they are doing and that is a big step for me," he said.

"As I stressed from day one, this class is really about how workers can help each other. Along with the skills and knowledge, I hope that idea is what you take away from this experience," said Hinkle.

ment that were made to defend its passage. In my opinion we should recognize these comments as truly anti-worker, and they should raise a red flag in the minds and hearts of working people as soon as we hear them.

After the passage of this bill our president told us that it was going to be AMAZINGLY good for working people because companies would now "VOLUNTARILY" give us higher wages.

Oh really? So, let me see if I have this straight brothers and sisters. We have struggled and shed blood all these years only to find out that if we just give huge tax breaks to the rich they will voluntarily share the profits of our labor with us?

I hope every union member understands how the very idea behind that comment weakens our bargaining position. The labor movement is not built on the concept of begging. It is built on the idea that we are smart enough to understand that we deserve to partake in a fair share of the profit that is made off of our labor. And, that we are knowledgeable enough to know that nothing in the world of business is given without leverage. In our case our leverage is the ability to deny our labor in solidarity with others.

Then, as an example of the benefits that we would see immediately from the passage of this tax cut we were told that some companies were giving $1000.00 bonuses to their employees.

Hey nothing wrong with a few bucks coming our way right? This is true enough, but anyone who has negotiated a contract knows that bonuses should be reserved for use as an extra, added incentive, not in lieu of a raise. This is because bonuses are temporary and do not add to your wealth. Once again, an insult.

Think about it. They take our tax money, give it to the richest people in our country, knowing fully well that one way or another we will have to pay it back. Then they tell us we should be excited because a few companies will take a miniscule portion of that money and give it to some of us in a lump sum. Wow, what a deal!

I hope people understand my point. It seems that we are currently living under a presidential administration that is re-shaping our government to resemble a shady private real estate enterprise. We also still have a congress that is big donor/money-driven on both sides of the isle.

As we move toward the upcoming midterm elections, let's use our heads and make sure we choose representatives that understand how important it is that we keep our focus on what will most benefit ourselves and our families, which is now, and has always been - worker power.

In solidarity, Pepe

Father, IBEW Local 2304
Mother, McFarland Federation of Teachers

Unions have been important to my family and community because it has given my family a voice in how they are treated in their place of business and improves my community by stimulating the local economy. Unions have always fought for the advancement of workers' rights since their earliest days and that goal is no different today. Living in Wisconsin, we are in a hotbed of labor Union activities and protests against unfair laws that reduce the power of Unions.

Many claim that Unions are harmful to business and stunt economic growth, but that could not be farther from the truth. Unions provide a way for workers to make their voices heard and make sure they are adequately paid for the services they provide. This is also known as the "right to collectively bargain" and is one of the primary ways that Unions make their voices heard. This is important to the community because if the workers are paid well they will stay at their job and invest in the community around them. It's also important to my family, as it allows my father to earn a livable wage and provide for our family.

The Union provides a safety net for its workers, both on the job site and in their place of employment. My father works for MG & E and is a member of the IBEW Local Union 953 (International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers). The Union provides him the ability to walk away from a job if he deems it unsafe. Safety has always been a big part of the IBEW and safety for the workers was one of the reasons the IBEW was founded.

My father has experienced the dramatic change in safety protocols over his 30 years of being a lineman. When my father first started working it was up to the crew leader to determine whether or not you were ready to join whatever job the crew was working on. For example, when the crew leader's responsibility to determine what each new hire did. Now there are apprenticeships and certifications that each crew member must earn, through long hours of diligent study and practice work, in order to be qualified to go out on a job. Now, the biggest concern in the morning for foremen is having well trained and certified crew ready to go out and do the job. Also, monthly safety meetings are now a common practice in order to learn about best practice on the job site. Small group meetings happen monthly and are lead by linemen, of any level, about any safety topic. This ensure that all linemen in a crew are knowledgeable about safety topics.

The Union grants its member a way to express themselves and their concerns about safety or policy and to be heard and considered by upper management; however, it is the opposite situation for my mother, a part of the MFT (McFarland Teachers Union), which since Act 10 has had no say in workplace conditions and policy. They are instead handed a handbook, without their input, that dictates what they do. However, since Act 10 was passed, the power of the teachers Union has been diminished by the fact that when a member doesn't show up for a vote it is counted as a "No" vote. This is an active attempt by public officials to break the unification of the workforce and silence the voice of the whole working class in this state. This shows that public officials are scared of the power of the Union and the unified voice of the workers, so they had to try smothering their power under laws and regulations.

Wisconsin has been appointed as a "Right-to-Work" state, where a non-Union member who doesn't pay dues can receive the same benefits and protections as a Union member. In theory, it doesn't sound that bad. It is, in fact, just another way to weaken the Unions, as a non-member who doesn't pay dues can have access to Union resources. This creates a system that drains Union resources because non-members use the resources, but do not contribute to those same resources upkeep. This also creates problems for Union members who then have to face increased membership dues in order to keep the Union's resources available to all member.

Balanced Budget Amendment, Rescissions Would Mean Cuts to Social Security and Medicare

In response to protests from so-called fiscal conservatives, President Donald Trump and congressional Republicans are considering forcing votes to cut billions of dollars in spending from the funding deal they passed barely two weeks ago. Called "rescissions," the cuts would cancel parts of the bipartisan appropriations measure that averted a government shutdown in March. Republicans are also preparing to make a big push for a balanced budget amendment (BBA).

According to the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities (CBPP), a BBA would mean that Social Security would be unable to draw down from its reserves to pay benefits. Benefits in a given year would instead have to be paid out from tax revenue collected that year, or would have to be cut. The same holds true for Medicare, and the benefits paid to civil service and military retirees. With the change, their pensions could only be paid out of the revenues collected that year, not from their pension trust funds.

By design, the Social Security trust fund is building up reserves — in the form of Treasury securities backed by the full faith and credit of the United States — which will be drawn down to help pay benefits when the number of retired “baby boomers” peaks in the late 2020s and early 2030s. Currently, Social Security holds $2.9 trillion in Treasury securities. But under the balanced budget amendment, it would essentially be unconstitutional for Social Security to draw down these savings to pay promised benefits. Social Security would be allowed to use its accumulated Treasury securities to help pay benefits only if the rest of the federal budget ran an offsetting surplus (or if the House and Senate each mustered three-fifths or two-thirds votes to permit deficits).

Medicare Part A — the Hospital Insurance trust fund — has the same structure as Social Security. That trust fund currently holds about $200 billion in Treasury securities, but under a balanced

The NRA would use it as fodder for propaganda to scare dumb racists into buying more guns. budget amendment, it would be unconstitutional for Medicare to draw down those savings to pay hospitalization costs because all federal expenditures — which includes Medicare payments — would have to be covered by taxes collected in the same year.

The military retirement and civil service retirement systems, which have their own trust funds, would be affected in the same way. As a result, the $700 billion in Treasury securities held by the military retirement trust fund and the $900 billion in Treasury securities held by the civil service retirement trust fund would be unavailable to pay promised retirement pensions.

“These moves would be terrible for Medicare and Medicaid, as well as Social Security,” said Joseph Peters, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer of the Alliance. “The GOP would be reneging on their budget deal before the ink is even dry, as well as endangering our retirement security if they pass a balanced budget amendment. If they truly wanted to trim the deficit, they could roll-back some of the massive tax cuts they gave to the wealthiest Americans earlier this year.”

Social Security is a Better Investment than Many Realized

Despite the common perception that Social Security is a low-risk but low-return investment, it actually looks better than ever compared to low-performing 401(k)s and IRAs.

The Economic Policy Institute found that a young worker today with average career earnings will receive Social Security retirement benefits equivalent to total employer and employee retirement contributions plus a 5.7 percent annual rate of return.

The “internal rate of return” is not much lower than the 7.0 percent net return for 401(k)-style defined contribution plans between 1990 and 2012, and it’s higher than more recent returns for these plans and IRAs (3.1 percent and 2.2 percent, respectively, over the 2000–2012 period).

“The figures are yet again an argument against privatization,” said Joseph Peters, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer of the Alliance. “Our Social Security system is strong, and is working. We need to share this information with our friends and neighbors and build more support for strengthening and expanding Social Security.”
